

Abstract

A method to determine and control engine torque 5 in an internal combustion engine. The method may significantly reduce torque strategy calculations and the calibration complexity.